

Host a Screening of On the Edge

*Thank you for stepping up to host a screening! By gathering your community to watch On the Edge together, you aren't just sharing a film — you are building the collective awareness and numbers we need to protect our environment. So here is your simple, step-by-step guide to hosting an impactful screening of On the Edge...*

Step 1: Invite your friends, family or community group

 Invite your friends, family or community group to join you for a screening of On the Edge, a 35 minute documentary about the future of our bush capital made by local filmmaker Trent Houssenloge of Cowboy Hat Films.

 You could invite people to watch the film with you at your house or, if you're inviting your community group, perhaps there is a venue which you already gather at that has a screen/projector that would work better?

 Here is an example invite message you can copy and paste to send to your invite list: "Hey [Name]! I'm hosting a screening of 'On the Edge'—a 35-minute local film about the future of our bush capital. I'd love for you to bring a drink/snack and come watch it with me and a few others so we can learn more about our home and how we can look after it. We're meeting at [Location] on [Date] at [Time]. Let me know if you can make it!"

Step 2: Access the film online and get comfy!

 Make sure your computer is connected to your TV, screen, or projector and has a stable internet connection.

Step 3: Sign and share the campaign petition

💬 Once the credits roll, open up the floor for conversation. You could ask "what part of the documentary surprised or moved you the most?"

📝 When everyone is feeling inspired to protect our Western Edge, strike while the iron is hot! Ask everyone in the room to take out their phones to sign and share the petition with five people they know right now:

📸 Then take a quick group photo of your screening

- On social media: Post the photo and tag your friends and @conservationact so we can amplify your event!
- In your local Nature Champions campaign chat: Share your photo and your final signature count to inspire other hosts!

(Note: If you or your guests prefer not to take photos, that is completely fine—please just drop your signature count into your local Nature Champions campaign chat so we can add it to our campaign total!)
